

TEN WAYS TO FIND AND KEEP YOUR WRITING MOJO

1

Just write

Stop waiting for permission-just start writing. That's how you'll find your voice, your message, your audience. You'll make mistakes along the way. That's ok.

2

Be confident

No one else can write what you can write. Self-doubt is always a companion, but remember that God gave you this gift to bless others. Believe that He has something to say through you.

3

Seek inspiration

Always be on the lookout for new ideas. Read widely and keep up with trends. Find a system for capturing ideas, and remember to keep Him as your Source.

4

Be intentional

Make writing a regular practice in your life, whatever that looks like for you. Keep track of what and when you want to post, including guest posts on other blogs.

5

Invest in it

Establishing a platform requires an investment of time and money. Take the time to learn your craft through podcasts, articles, or retreats.

6

Pace yourself

Being faithful requires a balance between discipline and inspiration. Don't let the pressure to produce make you overcommit-only do what you can be faithful in doing, and do it well.

7

Be bold

Self-promote! There's so much content out there that you have to fight to be seen. Find the medium(s) you like and use it well. Remember #2-what you write is worth sharing!

8

Find support

Whether it's a writer's group, or just a group of friends willing to hold you accountable and encourage you, seek out help. Find people who will sharpen your skills and keep you moving.

9

Expect failure

If you're putting yourself out there, you will have success and discouragement. You'll be tempted to compare yourself to others. Failure means you're trying.

10

Stay grounded

In truth! Success is sharing what God gives you in the power of the Holy Spirit, and leaving the results to Him. Whatever happens it does not determine your worth. He will use you however is best.
